The Maine Word About College

Questions about college from young Maine students, answered by old Maine students.

Today's writers

Ashley Hutchinson, a sophomore at UMF from Carthage, ME

Hunter Curtis, a sophomore at UMaine from Richmond, ME

Julianna Kiley, a junior at Bowdoin College from Boston, MA

Offered by Maine College Circle and the Mitchell Institute to great young students throughout Maine.

Q. How do you know where to go to college?

A. A lot of where you go to college ultimately comes down to what programs they offer. The University of Maine Orono is well known for its engineering program, which is why I go there. — Hunter

Thankfully, there are many resources which are available to help assist you in choosing a school that best suits your learning needs. Such resources include: guidance councilors, the internet, college fairs, college tours, and many more! — Ashley

Q. Is it fun at college?

A. College is SO much fun. You get to make friends with people who have similar interests to you, and get to choose to do things rather than being told to do one thing or another. — Hunter

Yes! There is so much to do at college in addition to your schoolwork. Some of the most fun things I have done at college are: driving to the Coastal Studies Center to jump in the ocean, going to a concert in Portland, making myself a giant ice cream sundae in the dining hall, setting up my hammock on the quad, and just hanging out in the dorms with my friends!

— Julianna

Q. What is a degree?

A. A degree is a certification that tells employers that you are knowledgeable in a field, but it's more than that. A degree lets the people that you are working for know that you have the ability to learn and adapt to challenges presented to you.

— Hunter

Q. Do you have to have a high school diploma to go to college?

A. Not all colleges require that you have a high school diploma to attend. Many institutions might require placement tests to certify that you have a basic level of knowledge to be admitted to further learning. Although, through personal experience, I have found that my high school attendance has worked to prepare me with a foundation of knowledge and tools to be ready to become a successful college student.

— Ashley

Q. Do you like small colleges or big colleges, because if you go to a small college you won't have to walk as much, but if you go to a big college you will have to walk a lot?

A. I go to a medium-large college, and I love it. The walking isn't that bad, and you get so many fun things to do at a large college, like go to club meet-ups, sports games, or just relax with friends around campus.

— Hunter

I personally enjoy my smaller sized campus! With a smaller campus I have many opportunities to connect with my professors. A smaller campus also allows me to make friends quicker as I see many of the same people every day—whether in passing or in my classes!

— Ashley

I love my small school campus. I still walk a lot, but a bike can help with that. It's only tough in the winter when the roads are icy—I've slipped a few times! But it's nice having everything in one place—dining halls, dorms, and classrooms.

— Julianna

Q. What can I do now to prepare for college?

A. The best way to prepare for college now is to focus on your schoolwork. Not only do you need the information from your classes to succeed in college, but you also need to build up good study habits like doing your homework on time and setting enough time aside during your day to study.

— Hunter

Here's my advice: find something you are passionate about and pursue it. Learn, work hard, and take on leadership roles.

— Julianna
